Re: Targeted violence prevention planning webinar

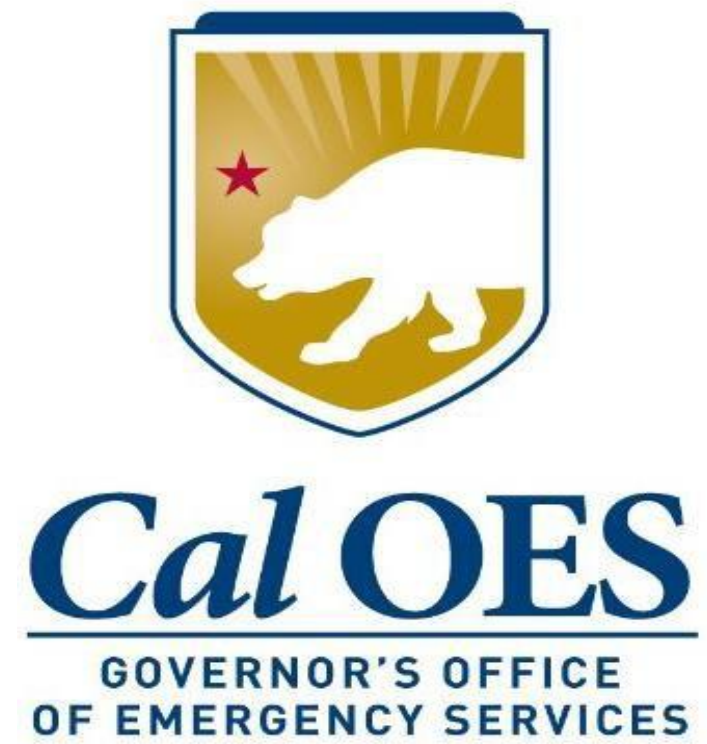

CalOES, working with the Department of Homeland Security, and the California Department of Health is presenting a one-hour webinar discussing practices and policies designed to prevent active shooter and other types of violent attacks.

This is not Run-Hide-Fight/active shooter response material, but rather a presentation focused on the future path for violence prevention planning. Event organizers want to link with churches, schools, and other community stakeholders to share planning efforts with organizations impacted by these types of attacks

The webinar is scheduled for February 7 from 10:30 – 11:30 AM. I apologize for the short notice; this invitation was distributed only last week.

Please see the attached flier for registration information.

CALIFORNIA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH POLICY ROADMAP FOR VIOLENCE PREVENTION

CDPH will provide an overview of a fourteenth-month project that intends to provide best practices, evidence-based, and promising policies and strategies found to be effective in preventing multiple forms of violence including gun violence. The Department of Homeland Security's Center for Prevention Programs and Partnerships will set the context for this program among other opportunities to partner, build local capacity, and connect with targeted violence prevention resources.
